Lack of Harmony in Home Reduces Radio Trio to Solo

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—The Andrew sisters' trio has been cut down to a solo—at least for the time being—because of lack of harmony in their home.

A representative of the radio singing sisters, Maxene, Patty and La Verne, said today that their father objected to romances between Maxene and Lou Levy, the trio's manager, and between Patty and Vic Schoen, their arranger. Maxene and Patty, being over 21, decided to leave home. La Verne decided to stay.

Somebody said the trio's representative, told the police that the trio's father, Peter Andrews, had a gun in his apartment and as a result Andrews was arrested charged with possessing a pistol without a permit. He was released in $500 bail for hearing today.

The trio's representative said the pistol had nothing to do with the case, that Andrews, a former restaurant operator in Milwaukee had long had a pistol to protect his receipts and that he did not know a permit was required in New York.

The trio was scheduled for a radio broadcast last night but La Verne didn't show up. The sponsor permitted Patty, the soloist to sing alone.

SENATE RESTORATION OF FARM AID SOUGHT

Leaders Decide To Let House Pass Reductions.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—Dismayed by demands for heavy cuts in agricultural expenditures, congressional farm leaders today hastily switched their principal fight for more money from the house to the senate.

Because of strong economy sentiment they decided to let the annual farm appropriation bill go through the house without a wholehearted attempt to add $225,000,000 for parity payments, but to seek its inclusion when the measure reaches the other chamber.

Nevertheless, they will try to restore during the house debate other slashes which the appropriations committee recommended yesterday by swapping support of relief and urban housing appropriations for votes from city members.

The appropriations committee asked the house to vote $634,374,-336 for all agriculture department activities next year—a total 20 per cent under the President's budget estimates and 50 per cent below the funds for the current year.

Among the items deleted were the $25,000,000 farm tenant loan program, the $72,678,812 boost in automatic appropriations for surplus crop removal, and $47,975,000—the money is in the bank—for benefit payments to sugar growers.

FOREST COUPLE IN FREAK CRASH

Lives Saved by Being Thrown from Car When Hit by Train.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Jan. 31—Two Forest residents, Ira J. Priest, 73, and his daughter, Mrs. Lola Lepley, 27, are receiving treatment at McKitrick hospital here for injuries suffered early today when the car in which they were riding was struck by a passenger train near LaRue in Marion county.

Hospital attendants said that Mr. Priest's condition is regarded as "serious but not critical" while Mrs. Lepley was not seriously injured. Mr. Priest is suffering from severe shock and fractures of the right arm and jaw while Mrs. Lepley is suffering from shock, minor lacerations and bruises, they reported.

Car Dragged 2,200 Feet

The automobile in which the two were riding was dragged for more than 2,200 feet and the locomotive of the train, Erie's Passenger Train No. 2, was derailed, but Mr. Priest and Mrs. Lepley were thrown clear of the wreckage a short distance from the crossing, it was reported.

The accident occurred about 12:30 a. m. at a railroad crossing north of LaRue on Route 37 and Erie railroad officials from Lima who investigated the accident quoted Mrs. Lepley, the driver, as saying that she did not see the train approaching because of a dense fog. She and her father were enroute home from Columbus.

Members of the train crew summoned a LaRue physician who administered first aid to the motorists and sent them to the Kenton hospital. Railroad officials said that if Mr. Priest and Mrs. Lepley had not been hurled from the car by the impact they probably would have been killed because the car was ground under the wheels of the locomotive.

The locomotive was the only part of the train that was derailed and the train crew and passengers were uninjured, railroad officials reported. Several yards of track was torn up.

A relief engine from Marion took the train to Hepburn where it was rerouted through DeCliff to Marion. Another Erie passenger train, No. 8, was delayed for a few minutes while the damaged locomotive was being removed and the rails repaired. A wreck crew from the Erie yards in Marion cleared the right-of-way about 4:30 o'clock, it was reported.

Miners Block 3rd Term Backing for Roosevelt

Convention Votes Resolution Referring Whole Question to International Executive Committee, Thereby Sidetracking 47 Petitions for Indorsement.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 31—The United Mine Workers of America convention today sidetracked resolutions indorsing a third term for President Roosevelt.

It agreed to refer the matter to its powerful international executive committee for action.

The vote appeared to be close, but president John L. Lewis—who six days ago predicted renomination of President Roosevelt would result in his "ignominious defeat"—said the majority was "overwhelming."

There was one and a half hours of hot floor discussion over a resolution which the powerful convention resolutions committee substituted for 47 resolutions backing Mr. Roosevelt for a third term.

Would Await Developments

The substitute resolutions recommended that any action of the executive committee be "predicated on the basis of the (Democratic) party being united on liberal candidates, on liberal principles, on a liberal platform for the consummation of the New Deal legislative program * * *."

Considerable opposition to the substitute resolution developed, several delegates declaring their locals were not in sympathy with Lewis' attitude toward the President.

The debate was the most lively of the convention, which opened a week ago and has been featured by Lewis' attacks on the New Deal administration. He also charged that the Democratic party had been "unfaithful" to labor."

The resolutions committee said in the substitute:

"We hold and believe the only sensible, sane and proper course is to refer the entire subject matter to the international executive board for appropriate action and such reasonable finance support as circumstances may warrant at the proper time in support of the program that may be agreed upon and worked in cooperation with labor's Non-Partisan league."

The committee also said that "the New Deal social and Democratic program of the present administration has not been consumated."

Early Headway Cited

"During the period from 1933 to 1937 headway was made, for which this organization was and is grateful, as evidenced by the helpful and effective action of our convention of 1936 when we pledged our moral and gave substantial financial support to the Democratic campaign of that year."

Debate on the substitute resolution started immediately.

In the 1938-39 session of congress, the resolution committee added, "a coalition clique put not only a stop to New Deal legislation but weakened and destroyed many of the New Deal legislative acts such as WPA wages and appropriations which were reduced.

"This campaign is still underway. To avoid errors of this description in 1940 it is necessary if the welfare of labor and the people are to be considered and if the sincerity of the party is to be true and abiding, that we must have a united party in 1940—united on liberal candidates, on liberal principles and the consummation of New Deal legislative and administrative policies and united with labor, working in cooperation with labor on the basis of recognition and proper representation, in order that we can win the election this year."

"It is impossible at this time, due to the uncertainty and chaos that exist, to outline any concrete policy or program that would be certain to protect and advance the best interests of labor," the resolution said.

UHRICHSVILLE BANKER GETS PAROLE HEARING

Action Ordered for Man Who Embezzled $475,000.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 31—After more than three years in Ohio penitentiary, freedom within 60 days loomed today as a possibility for Charles E. Wheland, former Uhrichsville Union bank president and confessed embezzler of approximately $475,000.

A parole hearing in either February or March was ordered by the Ohio pardon and parole commission on grounds that Common Pleas Judge E. E. Lindsay of Tuscarawas county erred in sentencing Wheland to concurrent terms of 10 to 30 years on each of 54 charges of embezzlement and falsification. The commission approved a one to five year sentence for falsely certifying a check.

Vice Chairman E. E. Everett said a parole was not assured but that Wheland was entitled to a hearing.

Problems Discussed at Meeting Of Marion County Rural School Heads

Transportation, Curriculum and Teachers' Requirements Main Topic; Nearly 80 Hear Talks.

Problems of school transportation, curriculum and teachers' requirements were discussed last night in an all-county board of education meeting at Harding High school.

Nearly 80 men, including members of the 14 rural boards of education, the county board of education and school superintendents and supervisors, attended the meeting.

Leading the discussions were Dean Frank L. Loy of the department of education of Ohio Northern university at Ada, Harold Bowers, of Columbus, chief of the teacher licensing bureau of the state department of education, and Dr. C. D. Hutchins of Columbus, director of transportation in the state department of education.

Leading the discussion of school curriculum, Dean Loy urged the board members to remember that the old type of public school curriculum had become popular merely because it was handed down from one generation of educators to the next and not because it filled any need existing at present.

The modern high school curriculum, he declared, should be designed to prepare boys and girls to take their places in a democratic society and to provide students an opportunity to determine the occupations in which they are most interested and for which they are best equipped.

"There is no sense at all in teaching our high school students college subjects like Latin, plane geometry and chemistry," he said. "The old curriculum, based on college courses, does not benefit the 90 per cent of the students who do not go on to college but instead get jobs immediately after leaving high school and even the 10 per cent who go on to college do not profit greatly from the high school courses because the colleges and universities are better equipped than public schools to teach college subjects.

Dr. Hutchins, speaking on transportation, congratulated the board members for maintaining one of the most modern groups of rural school buses in the state. He pointed out that only one school bus in the county is more than five years old and that most of the buses are less than two years old.

Suggests New Plan

As a means of reducing rural transportation costs, Dr. Hutchins suggested that a program might be worked out in the consolidated schools whereby high school classes would start earlier in the morning and dismiss earlier in the afternoon than the elementary classes. In this way, bus drivers could first take care of high school students and then make another trip around their routes to take care of grade school students. While there would be no actual savings in fuel under this plan, the number of buses could be reduced 50 per cent with

BEN WEST BARRED IN CONGRESS RACE

Board Holds Petition Signatures Improperly Obtained.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 31—Ben West of Mount Vernon was eliminated today as a Democratic candidate for the Seventeenth district short term congressional nomination. An investigation disclosed some of his nominating petitions were circulated under the name of his brother, former Rep. Charles West of Granville.

Six Democrats still remain in the field for the Feb. 6 primary.

The Richland county election board held West's candidacy invalid after it said a check showed 87 of 143 signatures were not obtained properly. Secretary of State Earl H. Griffith instructed the board to take this action.

W. R. Hanlon, Democratic member of the Coshocton county board of elections, said he received affidavits from two petition circulators that they obtained 83 signatures to petitions designating Charles West as the prospective candidate.

Hanlon informed Secretary of State Earl Griffith that Ben West's name appeared to have been written on the petitions after an erasure.

CHAMBERLAIN REPORTS NAZI U-BOAT SUNK

Undersea Craft Sent Down in Attempt To Attack Convoy of Ships.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Jan. 31—Prime Minister Chamberlain today asserted that a German submarine had been sunk yesterday when it attempted to attack a British convoy.

Chamberlain said that this was the first such attempt by a submarine in a long time, and that the attacker was destroyed by combined air and naval forces.

The prime minister made the announcement in an address before a luncheon of the national defence and public interest committee.

His audience recalled that Winston Churchill, the first lord of the admiralty, had stated at Manchester Saturday that the odds were 300 to 1 against the Germans successfully attacking a convoy.

Chamberlain assured the United States and Japan that Britain was anxious to avoid friction or disturbance in her trade and other relations with them and with other neutrals in the war against Germany.

One of Britain's foremost aims of the war, he said, is to return to normal trade among nations.

Of the British-Japanese dispute over the seizure by a British warship of 21 Germans from the Japanese steamer Asama Maru on Jan. 21, Chamberlain said:

"Nothing could more distress us than that the Japanese government or the people should feel that we have exercised our belligerent rights with any want of courtesy or respect for them."

Speaks to Neutrals

The leader of the liberal opposition, Sir Archibald Sinclair, addressing another meeting, said that he shared Churchill's hope that the neutral nations would see the necessity of "uniting" for the defense of their liberties.

Chamberlain opened his address today with a gibe at Adolf Hitler's secret arrangements for his speech last night and expressed pleasure at attending a meeting "neither the time nor the place of which you have found it necessary to conceal from the public."

Chamberlain said that most of the sunken U-boat's crew were saved.

The prime minister said that since the war began Britain had placed orders for supplies costing nearly £200,000,000 (about $800,000,000), that the output in guns had doubled and in some cases quadrupled and that shells were being made faster than in 1914.

MARTEL P. O. HEAD ENDS LONG SERVICE

A. S. Downs Retires After Filling Post 30 Years.

Andrew S. Downs ended nearly 30 years of service as postmaster at Martel today. Tomorrow morning Mrs. Nellie Weirick of Martel will take over the position as acting postmaster.

Mr. Downs, 76, is retiring from the service because of new postal regulations passed last summer which placed him beyond the age limit. Prior to the new regulations postmasters could retire at 70, but it was not required. He became postmaster on April 10, 1910 and has filled the position continuously since then. The office serves about 135 or 140 persons.

Mr. Downs, who has lived in Martel for the last [illegible] years, will continue to operate the store in which the post office was located.

Beginning tomorrow, the post office will be in the Weirick home. [illegible]

HITLER HINTS PICKUP IN WAR

Promises England and France "Fight They Have Been Asking For."

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Jan. 31—A prompt boom in the bitterness and energy of the war was predicted by German commentators today on the strength of Adolf Hitler's declaration that "England and France will get the fight they asked for."

Hitler's own Voelkischer Beobachter stressed this quotation in a page-one headline over its account of his impromptu seventh anniversary address in the sports palast last night.

Observers scanned the text of the address vainly for any note of conciliation, and concluded that the German fuehrer intended to make a finish fight of the war that will be five months old on Saturday.

They detected a note of reliance on Soviet Russia and Italy, when he said the Russian ties made Germany's position safe "from the rear" and that the reich was buttressed by unchanged, "close friendship with Italy."

Reference To War Aims

In the German leader's first formal address since he so narrowly escaped death in the Munich beer cellar explosion of Nov. 8, Hitler portrayed Germany's relations as follows:

Great Britain and France:

"In 1939, the western powers dropped the mask and sent Germany a declaration of war, despite all our attempts at an understanding.

"Today they admit an understanding with Poland might have been possible, but they did not want it. They wanted war. I can only tell England and France they will get the fight they asked for."

Soviet Russia:

"For the past year I have tried to remove the possibility of this war's expanding into a general one. England's Prime Minister Chamberlain, then, was anxious for an understanding with Russia. Today our enemies are furious that I did what they attempted, namely, to arrive at that understanding. I believe the Almighty God will be satisfied that a [illegible]

CITY'S POLICY FOR FUTURE NOT CERTAIN

Extensive Retrenchments and Halting of All WPA Work Likely.

Marion's voters turned down the proposed tax levies for relief and WPA in yesterday's special election, with the result that today city officials were confronted with an urgent problem of finding some new source of funds for aiding the community's needy.

The 1.5-mill relief levy polled 2,018 favorable votes and 2,058 no votes, for a percentage of approximately 50%. It needed 55 per cent to pass.

The vote on the .3-mill WPA levy received 1,942 votes for and 2,050 against, for a percentage of 48.6. It required 55 per cent for passage.

Mayor Snare and other administrative officers plan to confer shortly with City Solicitor Kenneth A. Robinson to determine what course to take now. The mayor said that possibly a tentative plan may be ready in a day or two.

Meanwhile the city's policy is uncertain.

Various Retrenchments Expected

Mayor Snare said that at present several things seem likely to happen. First, a thorough culling of the relief rolls to cut out all but the most deserving cases; second, the ending of the city's participation in WPA after present projects expire; third, concentration of the city's relief program on direct and work relief, instead of WPA; a reduction in general operating expenses in various city departments wherever possible.

The city estimates that an average of about 300 persons are normally employed on city WPA projects. There are probably not that many now because of halting of some work by cold weather.

Food orders to the city's relief clients, now over 300 cases, were issued today, exhausting the relief money, Mayor Snare said.

The mayor said it is hoped the city's new relief program will be mapped out in time for the issuing of the next relief orders in two weeks.

The voting yesterday was decisive, especially on the WPA project. It failed to receive 55 per cent in any of the city's six wards and was approved in only two precincts. They were 2-D which votes at Silver street school and 3-B which votes at Glenwood school. Both gave the levy a 57 per cent favorable vote.

Carried 10 Precincts

The relief levy was approved in 10 of the city's 30 precincts and in Wards One, Two and Three. It failed to carry Wards Four, Five and Six and in any of the precincts of those wards.

The First ward is in the northeast section of the city, the Second in the northwest; the Third in the west and southwest; the Fourth in the south and southwest; the Fifth in the south; and the Sixth in the southeast.

The percentage of favorable votes by wards were:

Blood Runs Cold

By Ann Demarest

YESTERDAY: Kimball denies killing Joan Kent. Mrs. MacDonald admits disagreeing with her daughter over Lathrop. Christine's spirits lighten, now that Dirck is on the scene.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN
'Violent Person'

"HOW did you happen to move here, anyway?" Dirck asked me.

I gave him a five-minute talk on the advertisement in the paper, viewing the apartment, carefully omitting any mention of Toby, and finally moving in and its predicaments.

"Now isn't that just like you to be sitting on the sidewalk in the middle of the winter."

I raised an eyebrow. "You seem to have a low notion, Mr. Kolff, about me and my doings."

"I've been hearing about you from Taylor ever since you got removed from boarding school for throwing spit balls."

"It wasn't spit balls," I said firmly. "Anyway, I thought I could trust Mr. Taylor. Aren't lawyers supposed to keep confidences?"

Dirck smiled. "I wormed it out of him. You were a cute little kid."

He changed the subject abruptly. "Do you think Kimball got on well with his niece?"

"I believe so. I think he's grand."

Dirck nodded. "Every mystery must have its romance," he said gravely.

"My secret passion," I said just as gravely, "is the young man who guards the front door."

"Hm. The red-headed one?"

"Yes."

"Chris, I'm disappointed in you, falling for a cop."

"He's not a cop. I made inquiries. He's an assistant to the Sergeant of the Homicide Squad."

"If you wouldn't mind getting your mind off the boys for a minute, I'd like a little information. After all, if I'm to keep you out of jail I must know the facts."

I told him all. I was surprised how many things had happened. When I finished he asked if I had any theories.

"I haven't one," I said very sorrowfully. "Being a spinster doesn't make me a detective. The mystery stories are all wrong."

"You're twenty-eight, I believe."

I shook my head. "Wrong again. I've reached twenty-nine so fast I've had to hold my hat going around the corners.

"How time flies."

"What I want to know, Mr. Kolff, is whether my good name is still under a cloud." And I told him what I heard the Sergeant say when I was going down the stairs.

"You don't look too stable," he said, "but I think my presence has reassured him a little. Taylor told me to take care of you while he was away, but I didn't realize what a violent person you are."

"You aren't taking it seriously enough to be a help to anyone."

"I'll try to protect you from red-headed detectives, at any rate," he said.

Taste in Girls

"There are a couple of things I've noticed, but doubtless, as everyone says, they have no bearing on the case."

He leaned back in the chair. "Shoot."

"I think the girl's mother knows more than she admitted, for one thing."

"You're right there," he agreed quickly.

And then I told him about the girls in the front apartment. "Mary Ann Rogers seems quite nice," I said when I finished.

He sat up. "Pretty?"

"Very! But I don't like the other girl. She was up to something last night, but I don't know what it was. But I'm very much afraid, Mr. Kolff, that she wasn't sleeping at home in her own little bed. But after all, I guess that doesn't mean she had anything to do with the murder."

Dirck was interested. "I'd like to have a talk with those girls. I suppose they are in."

I nodded. "None of us is supposed to leave."

"Anything else?"

"That's all, except the lighter."

I told him about that, then showed him my list of questions on the drawing board. He seemed more interested in the list than the missing lighter.

"If I were you," he said thoughtfully, "I'd leave the questions on the board just as they are in full view of anyone who might come in the room. It's just a chance that there is someone who's interested enough to keep a close watch on everything in the house."

"Young man," I said, "I'm no sissy, but I don't want people skulking around my apartment. That man last night nearly scared the daylights out of me."

Dirck shouted with laughter. "According to Mr. Kimball, the Sergeant is certain it was one of your boy friends. I've been in on a good many cases, but never before have I seen a respectable girl accused of such varied and lurid deeds. Lock your door at night by all means, but why not leave it ajar or at least unlocked, during the day? Unless you have valuables you're afraid might be stolen," he added with a twinkle.

"If I had any valuables," I said, "I wouldn't be living in this neighborhood. Painting water colors isn't as lucrative as it used to be. I'll leave the door unlocked, but I'm glad Taylor fixed up my will before he left."

"Don't be morbid."

"It's because I haven't had any lunch," I said sadly. "They're pretty strict about letting us out of the house."

"My darling!" He got up. "I'm sure," he said as he poked through his overcoat pockets, "that I've got something in here for you."

"Chocolate cake maybe, or chicken sandwiches?" I said hopefully.

He beamed as his hand struck something. He threw me a package. It was throat lozenges. I threw them back.

"Sit tight," he said. "I'll run in and talk to the girls in the front apartment, and then we'll feed you lavishly." He opened the door. "By the way, which one was I to fall for?"

"If you have any taste at all in girls or like a very interesting shade of red hair, you'll know which one."

Through the Window

When Dirck finally did come back to my room it was after five and dark outside. I was sitting by the window, feeling at low ebb, with only the candle for light. I'd put the spare bulb in the bathroom to bathe and dress by, though I didn't have the energy to do anything about it. Dirck said he'd been up to see Richard MacDonald, but before he had time to come in and tell me about it the Sergeant came upstairs and Dirck followed him into Joan Kent's apartment.

"All he can do is throw me out," he said cheerfully as he left.

But he wasn't thrown out, and in a couple of minutes he called me in. The Sergeant was leaning at a perilous angle out of the window. He motioned to Dirck to close the door to the hall and then turned to me.

"Think carefully now," he said, very much excited. "After you went back to your own apartment last night, did you hear the door of this room, or any door, being opened or closed?

"No, I didn't. I'm sure I would have heard it, too, because I stood inside of my own door trying to lock it."

"Did you hear any one in the hall directly after that?"

"Not for about twenty minutes. Then I heard someone come upstairs. It must have been the man who came into my apartment. After he left I heard the quarreling, and after that someone else came up from the first floor."

"That must have been Miss Rogers, the pretty red-haired girl," Dirck said. "She said she got back about twenty past twelve."

The Sergeant sat down in a large chair by the window. "God, I'm tired," he said, resting his feet on a footstool. "Now, Kolff, what I can't understand is, when the murderer could so easily have left by the door, why you should think he left by the window. I'm still convinced that he waited until the coast was clear and then left by the stairs. There were no footprints in the snow outside, because that fool janitor turned up in time to clean the snow out of the side yard and the path to the garage this morning. If your idea is right, there would have been footprints. But I still stick to the stairs."

Dirck shook his head slowly and the Sergeant scowled.

"He might have opened the window," he went on, "so that the body would get cold and make it hard to determine when the murder was done. As a matter of fact, the girl was in her nightgown and ready for bed. Maybe she opened the window herself."

"It was too cold," Dirck said. "I don't think she'd have opened it until she was ready to get into bed. She'd have hardly been sitting there with the wind blowing over her and only a thin silk dressing gown on over her night dress."

The Sergeant regarded him sourly. "It would take an athlete to get out of the window and swing down to the court."

"I don't think so," Dirck said. "The only difficulty to my mind was doing it with gloves on. It made it hard to get a grip on that drain pipe."

"Well, we'll try it out. I'll get Norton and maybe I can prove my point," the Sergeant said as he left the room.

Dirck was busy making some calculations on a piece of paper, so I looked around the apartment. It was a lovely room, perfectly furnished and arranged. You could get a pretty clear idea of the girl from her things: the dull blue rug, the chintz-covered chairs, a bowl of moss roses, now wilted with the cold, on the drop-leaf table and on the low coffee table in front of the couch a collection of funny little carved wooden dogs. Poking out from a low footstool were a pair of small brown suede pumps, their round toes scuffed, and somehow pathetic.

LILY PONS

(This is the second of a series of three articles on women from foreign countries who have made some of the largest salaries in America).

* * *

By ALBERT W. WILSON
Associated Press Writer

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—Several women from abroad who have been slow in dropping their accents and even in learning English, have been amazingly fast in earning American dollars in many fields besides the movies—radio, stage, opera and even business.

Leap year note: They also have been slow about marrying or have shown a preference for husbands of foreign origin.

Outside Hollywood, none apparently matches the success of Greta Garbo, Marlene Dietrich, Claudette Colbert and Sonja Henie, who require only two to four years to make a million. But a worthy challenger for them is petite Lily Pons, whose name didn't appear in the government's recent salary disclosures because sources of her earnings are diversified.

$100,000 Without Tiring

Business associates say La Pons plans her years so she will make at least $100,000 without getting herself all worn out. Actually she probably has gone far beyond that figure several times since arriving from France on her first trip to America in 1931.

She left a husband behind in France. Later they were divorced and seven years passed while many rumors of romance were punctured before she married Andre Kostelanetz, a Russian-born orchestra director who has done well enough financially himself. Meanwhile Pons has been a stream-lined money earner in radio, films, concerts and several opera companies.

Kirsten Flagstad, the Norse nightingale, ranks with Pons as a high-paid opera star. She doesn't sing as often on the radio but single appearances are said to net her from $4,000 to $5,000. She began coming to this country in 1934, twenty years after her operatic debut in Europe. She is married to Henry Johansen, a wealthy Norwegian lumberman.

Stay After Visit

In 1924, Andre Charlot brought Gertrude Lawrence and Beatrice Lillie to America, in his revue and ever since then they have been cleaning up financially in this country with several long runs in successful stage shows, occasional high-priced radio appearances and a few movies.

Miss Lawrence, born in London, was separated from her husband many years ago and there have been many rumors of romance since then, none materializing. Bea Lillie, from Toronto, the same city that sent America one of its most successful women in a generation, Mary Pickford, has been a widow for nearly six years.

Lynn Fontanne, born and educated in London and a stage star before she came to America quite a few years ago, was listed by the government as earning $100,000 from the Theater Guild in 1937. Her husband, Alfred Lunt, now a director of the guild, earned a like sum that year and no one in the theater business would suggest they have done any less since then. The couple have just completed one of the longest and most successful road tours in the history of the American theater.

Short Stay Well Paid

Elisabeth Bergner, Viennese actress, was listed as making $24,000 in Hollywood in 1934 and during her short sojourn in this country probably earned far more than that on the stage and in movies combined.

Helena Rubenstein, who studied medicine in Poland, pioneered the beauty culture business in America 20 years ago and now has successful salons all over the world. She was the wife of Edward J. Titus, a publisher here, but now is married to the Russian Prince Artchil Gourielli.

Lilly Dache, born in southern France, came here after working as a millinery assistant in Paris. Now she has hat shops in 87 cities and picked for her husband a Frenchman, Jean Despres, vice president of a perfume firm.

One of the greatest drawing cards in the American lecture tour business—where the best ones make $25,000 or more on a single jaunt over the country—is Eve Curie, daughter of the discoverers of radium. This young Frenchwoman in three years also has drawn royalties on a best-seller book in America far beyond that figure.

PROGRAM GIVEN AT LAWRENCE SCHOOL

Community singing opened a program of entertainment presented Monday night when members of the Lawrence Community club met at Lawrence school. A play, "Salvation Am Free," was presented by a cast from the Smeltzer school community under the direction of Miss Dorothy Springer, teacher. The cast consisted of Mrs. Mildred Jackman, Mrs. Harley Fairchild, Mrs. C. H. Ferriman, Mrs. James Thoms, Mrs. Robert Patrick, Miss Donna Ruth Ferriman, Miss Barbara Thomas, Mrs. Murray Wainforth, Miss Winifred Thomas, Miss Hulda Winsor, Miss Mildred Patrick and Anna May Fairchild. Other numbers on the program included an accordion solo by Joy Kline, chalk talk by Mrs. Hayes Holland, guitar solo by Betty Bierce and recitations by Richard Lawrence, Gloria Leigh, Billy Riggs, Bonnie Stayner, Augusta Jones, Junior Lawrence, Naomi Scowden and Joseph Lawrence. L. H. McGhee, Lawrence school teacher, and Mrs. Ferdinand Lawrence, president of the club, were in charge. Plans were made for a penny supper to be held at the school Feb. 26.

PUBLIC INVITED TO TALK BY EDUCATOR

The public has been invited to hear Dr. Roberta Ma, young Chinese Christian educator, Thursday night at 7:30 at Calvary Evangelical church.

Dr. Ma's engagement here was arranged for by the Marion County Ministerial association.

Her address will deal with the complicated situation in the Far East and the tremendous issues that are being decided there. She speaks English fluently, having received her college education, and her degrees in this country. She will appear in native costume.

Quarrysville, Pa., Will Suspend All Business As Usual on Groundhog Day

By The Associated Press

QUARRYVILLE, Pa., Jan. 31—Undaunted by the claims of scoffers and rival prophets, the faithful of this southern Pennsylvania countryside are awaiting Friday's chance to pledge new faith in the long range weather forecasting of the groundhog.

This is the big day—each February 2—when members of slumbering groundhog lodge don top hats and nightshirts to march into the swamp hollow country, learn the woodchuck's prediction, then hasten home to feast and spread the news.

Turning lyric in its call to members, the lodge disposed of such scoffers as men of science and forecasters of the government weather bureau with the note:

"Astronomers come and astrologers go and scientists cover the earth like snow, while people with titles and many degrees are as thick and as plenty as leaves on the trees, and folk who are rated as learned and wise keep writing and talking and buzzing like flies.

"Their inventions of gadgets and special machines were varied and wondrous and common as beans. But combining their efforts in one mighty chance—they can't tell the weather six weeks in advance."

The lodge members contend they can—by observing whether a proper groundhog sees his shadow Feb. 2 at the end of his winter nap. If he sees it, that's another month and a half of winter, so they say.

Jealous of its memberships, the lodge has taken in only 92 men in more than 30 years. Sixty-five remain alive. Only three "outsiders" have been elected—Vice President John N. Garner, former President Svinhufred of Finland and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

This year President Roosevelt was proposed — but two local blacksmiths were taken instead. Hibernating Governor George W. Hensel Jr. said Roosevelt probably was "too busy" now but might be considered later.

Finnish People Need Your Help

Unless the Soviets intend to march to the Norwegian coast to establish a naval base there, they have no sound reason for invading Finland. When they frightened Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania into submitting to military domination they secured ice free ports on the Baltic and strategic control of it. Nothing more of consequence could be gained by taking Finland. By the treaty with Finland signed in 1920, they received permission to cross the Petsamo district to Norway on any peaceful venture. They also have ready use of the Free Port of Hanko (Hango). Certainly, they could have no reason to fear invasion by Finland.

In these circumstances Finland, which represents a bulwark of liberty against a foreign government by tyranny, is entitled to the support of the rest of the world which believes in the freedom of mankind. So please send your token of help at once to the Finnish Relief Fund to be forwarded by us to headquarters in New York City.

Your Income Tax

HOW TO AVOID COMMON ERRORS

The period for the filing of income-tax returns covering the calendar year 1939 began January 1 and ends at midnight of March 15, 1940. To file early is of mutual benefit to the Government and the taxpayer. Within this period are filed annually millions of individual income-tax returns, a large proportion of which report income subject to the tax. The latter contain a considerable percentage of errors, which if uncorrected by the audit would result to the disadvantage of the taxpayer. Many are errors of compuation easily discovered on the face of the return, which usually is accompanied by a payment of more than the amount of tax due. In other returns it is readily discernible that the taxpayer has failed to take advantage of the personal exemption, credit allowed for dependents, or deductions from gross income to which he is entitled.

To avoid these and other errors, the Bureau of Internal Revenue urges careful reading of the instructions accompanying the forms for filing the returns. Additional information, if needed, may be obtained at the office of a collector of internal revenue, deputy collector, or an internal revenue agent in charge. A taxpayer who applies to a revenue officer for assistance in preparing his return should take with him a copy of his prior year return. Also, as a further aid in the preparation of a correct income-tax return for the year 1939, the Bureau has prepared a series of short newspaper articles, of which this is the first, advising the salaried man, wage earner, professional and business man—in fact, every class of individual taxpayer—of the requirements and privileges under the income-tax law as interpreted under the latest regulations, rulings, and decisions.

DECREASE IN ORDERS PRODUCTION THREAT

Federal Reserve Bank Warns Reduction Near.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Jan. 31—The Federal Reserve bank of Cleveland warned today "the time is approaching" when Fourth district business "orders will have to expand from the present level or production will have to be reduced further if inventory accumulation is to be avoided."

The bank each month reviews conditions in the district comprising Ohio, Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Kentucky and the West Virginia panhandle.

"Many industries report a decline in incoming orders, and output is being maintained to a considerable degree at the expense of the backlog of orders on hand," the bank declared.

"The year 1940 probably started with industrial output at the highest level ever recorded for that season of the year, even though there was some contraction in those lines whose rapid advance contributed most to the general upswing following declaration of war in Europe.

"So far as actual output of goods is concerned, the falling-off thus far has been moderate, for industrial activity has been maintained at a fairly high level partly because large unfilled orders were carried over into the new year."

The bank reported "little change" in fourth district financial conditions in the last month. In the four weeks ended Jan. 24, bank debits—the flow of money as recorded in checking account transactions—were 11.6 per cent over the comparable 1939 period.

Looking over final figures for 1939, the bank noted debits up 8 per cent over 1938; department store sales up 8.2 per cent, and total building contracts up 18.1 per cent, paced by a 53 per cent increase in residential building. Sales at reporting department stores in the district in the last two months of 1939 "were the largest since 1929" but declined in January "more than seasonally."

YOUR HEALTH

• • •

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Winter's Diseases

The four great winter diseases are respiratory infections — (1) the common cold, (2) influenza, (3) chronic sinus and ear infection, and (4) pneumonia.

The peak incidence of the common cold during the year is February 1. So about this time of year the departments of public health and pharmaceutical houses publish announcements, the burden of which is "Avoid the common cold."

As a corollary to this, they usually deplore the vast economic waste entailed by the common cold—the number of working days lost.

This column has always felt that a great deal of what is said on the subject of wishful thinking, and while it very properly tries to give aid and comfort to the defending armies, there is very little advice that is practical because very little of it, if followed out, results in any positive benefit.

It is very much like deploring the necessity of having the hair cut. That also involves a great deal of economic waste. I suppose this very day there are at least five million hours of working time being lost by the male population of this country because they are having their hair cut. Conservatively, in one year, time is consumed which would represent ten million entire lifetimes, simply by having our hair cut. As for the dollars and cents involved, I saw a statement recently that the value of all the United States interests in China is only two thirds of the value of the United States domestic barber business.

But nobody wails about the economic waste of hair cuts for the very good and sufficient reason that there is nothing to be done about it.

Same Way About Cold

I feel exactly the same way about the common cold. To some of my nose and throat colleagues, who object to my iconoclastic views about cold vaccines, I have said that I could put everything that is positively known about the common cold in a short paragraph. They have challenged me to do so, and here it is:

The common cold is an infection of the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and bronchial tubes. It is, to a certain extent, contagious. It is caused not by a germ, but by virus. Secondary infection with germs is planted on top of the virus inflammation and prolongs the period of convalescence. It is accompanied by a slight fever, slight prostration, headache and muscle aches. It has no serious complications or sequelae. It is definitely associated with cold weather. The incidence is highest in those under four years old and drops to almost nothing after the age of 45, which indicates that in the course of time immunity is established. Cures are invented and believed in largely by people over 45 who do not realize that their immunity is not due to the treatment but to their age. Colds cannot be prevented by any vaccine, dietary measure or exercise. Avoidance of exposure helps to prevent. There is no method of treatment known that gives rapid relief. Bed rest is the best treatment. The only medicine known which gives relief is codeine. Codeine can be prescribed only by a physician.

Tomorrow I will put in a few paragraphs the things we don't know about a cold.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L.B.: "Will bad tonsils and adenoids keep a child from learning? This boy has had bad adenoids and tonsils. He has gone to school one term but does not learn anything."

Answer: Yes, because they interfere with hearing. Also, they affect the general health.

J.D.M.: "Are there are harmful results in taking baking soda frequently to relieve acid stomach?"

Answer: It is sometimes reported that too much soda causes alkalosis, but it must occur very seldom. For practical purposes it is safe to take enough to get relief.

MARION MILLING CO. AND UNION SIGN

Working Rules Agreement Is Made with A. F. of L. Group.

Announcement was made today of the signing of a working rules agreement between the Marion Milling Co. and Local No. 22080 of the Flour, Feed and Elevator Workers Union, A. F. of L. affiliate.

The agreement, effective Jan. 27, runs for a year and is then automatically renewed unless either party notifies the other to the contrary.

List of Signers

The contract, the signing of which brought to a close several weeks of negotiation, was signed for the company by D. S Jackman, secretary and general manager of the Kansas Milling Co. of Wichita, Kan., of which the Marion plant is a branch. Negotiations for the company were carried on locally by P. A. Lashley, Marion manager, and his assistants, J. P. Cooper and G. E. Martin. Cliff B. Welch, secretary of the Marion Central Labor Union, represented the A. F. of L. and G. O. Thoms, S. C. Wormell and Ralph Hogan were the union negotiating committee.

Local No. 22080 is a recently organized union, composed of workers employed in handling and processing of grain. Officers are Mr. Toms, president; L. E. Frans, vice president; Mr. Hogan, secretary, and Howard Baker, treasurer.

Operated Since 1935

The Marion Miling Co. began operations here in April of 1935 after the former Marion National Mill site was acquired by the Kansas concern. The storage capacity was greatly enlarged and numerous other improvements effected, including installation of modern equipment and a laboratory. The company does largely carload business, shipping especially cake flour into the eastern markets and self-rising flours into the southern markets.

Products include some carried over from the National Mill and other new ones carrying the Kansas company's brand name.

Processes have been developed at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for producing stainless steel with surfaces as lustrous as gold, silver or platinum.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Promises Veritzen She Will Drill Olina in Role Before His Return to Farm

PHILIP VERITZEN took my refusal to have the rehearsal of my play staged 24 hours earlier than I had planned with better grace than I had expected.

Either he anticipated my refusal, and was only putting the request in the forlorn hope that the interpolation of a role for the Princess Olina would make me change my mind about advancing the schedule, or he was in so mellow a mood following the acceptance of his proposal of marriage to Queen Olga that nothing could disturb his equanimity. At any rate, his only signs of discomfiture were a shrug of his shoulders and a twisted smile at me.

"In that case," he said, "I think my cue is immediate departure. But—I shall have to come back to hear Olina play those harps after their arrival. Do you suppose, if you can secure a nap in the meantime, that you will be able to have her go through the bit of the role you will have written for her? I understood you to say it would be only a few words. It would be most unwise, I think, to trust an amateur with more, and I am counting on your drilling to make her rendition fool-proof."

Olina's Role

"I think it can be," I said confidently. "She will be seated at her harp during the entire scene, so there will be no gestures or walking about the stage to consider. And the few words she will speak will be commonplace ones, calling for nothing special in the way of histrionicism. I am sure she will manage it very nicely, especially as she is used to public appearances."

"That is very reassuring," he said. "But you have not told me at what time you will be able to have me return."

I made a swift mental calculation. I wanted to put Mary through a final rehearsal of her role as she and I had planned the rendition which was so to surprise Philip Veritzen. But I did not wish to be hurried in it, so I must postpone it until after his call. This entailed, of course, getting his first visit over as soon as possible, and I framed my answer accordingly.

Rehearsal Time Set

"I will make my nap a brief one this morning," I said, "and take a longer one this afternoon. In that way, I can plan to have you come over as soon as the harps arrive. In the meantime, I will write Olina's role, and drill her in it, so that you will be able to judge the whole effect. I will telephone you as soon as the harps arrive. Then by the time you get here — I would suggest a half hour's interval before you start—Olina will have been able to choose her harp, and everything will be in place for her rehearsal."

"The plan does justice to your efficiency," he said, bowing from the waist. "And I will go at once. If you will permit me. Please promise me to go back to sleep immediately."

"I promise," I told him, making a "mental reservation" as to the time of the nap. He was scarcely out of the front door before Lillian emerged from my room and literally dragged me back to it, where I found Mary waiting.

"I sneaked in," she said, eyes shining with excitement, "when his back was turned, and he never saw me. Now, for the love of Allah and all his prophets, spill us the dope. Aunt Lillian and I are going to be just scraps from the consuming fire of curiosity if you don't come across."

"I'll tell you all I know," I said. "Three harps are going to arrive at the farm within as many hours, by your father-in law's orders. Olina is to have her chance, provided she can play the harp to suit her future step-father. Oh, yes! Queen Olga consented just now to marry him almost immediately. He's coming back shortly after the harps arrive—I'm to telephone him—and before he comes I'm to have the role written in and Olina rehearsed in it. I think that's all."

"You think that's all," Mary repeated in an awed tone. "Ye gods and assorted little fishes! You've got a program there for a superwoman. Do you think—" she hesitated, then brought out the supreme sacrifice—"that you'll need to rehearse me today? You said the last time you rehearsed me that I would do."

"And so you would, my dear," I said, smiling at her, "should some unforeseen emergency arise to prevent your rehearsal. But my program this morning distinctly is not such an emergency. I shall have time for a good nap today, and I want you to go back to your room now and get the sleep which I interrupted so that you could inveigle Olina to the tennis court."

A knock sounded on the door, Olina's distinctive one, and we looked at each other in consternation. Had she heard what I had said?

Williams-Gaster Nuptials Read in Tuesday Rites

THE twenty-seventh wedding anniversary of her parents was chosen by Miss Audrey Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Williams of the Walters road, for her marriage to Ralph Gaster, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Gaster of North Main street, Tuesday morning. The ceremony was read by Rev. M. E. Hollensen, pastor of Emanuel Lutheran church, at the parsonage on South Prospect street, in the presence of the immediate families. Miss Ruby Laucher and Elwyn Williams, brother of the bride, were the attendants.

For the ceremony the bride chose a gown in a dusty rose shade with matching hat and gloves, and she wore a garnet necklace worn by her mother at her own wedding. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of sweet peas. The maid of honor wore teal blue with matching accessories. For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Williams wore a gown in an old rose shade with matching accessories and Mr. Gaster's mother chose a gown of printed silk with harmonizing accessories.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Mary Barkley, a cousin of the bride, pianist, played "Indian Love Call," and "Because," and during the ceremony she played "I Love You Truly."

The bride's gift to her attendant was a vanity case, and Mr. Gaster gave his best man a key chain.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained with a dinner. The table was centered with a wedding cake and covers were laid for the bridal party, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Gaster, Miss Marguerite Barkley and Kenneth Williams.

CHURCH DISCUSSES DIVORCE QUESTION

New Canon on Marriage Before Episcopalians.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Jan. 31—Northern Ohio Episcopalians called up for discussion today a suggested canon on marriage under which the church would recognize several "impediments" as providing sanctioned grounds for divorce.

Adultery is the only basis for divorce the church now recognizes. The new suggested canon, due to be discussed in other dioceses throughout the country as a framework for action by the church's general convention, would recognize such grounds as arrested development, mistaken identity and mental deficiency.

Also before the convention was a resolution introduced by Rev. R. DeFrees Brion of Niles, seeking establishment of a clergy bureau aimed at coordination of information and improved placement of clergymen.

The Niles rector indicated a belief that younger rectors, when capable, should have an opportunity to move into what he called "cream of the crop" parishes.

This resolution, and another seeking to permit lay readers to assist rectors in administering holy communion, were before the convention for "advice" and not final action. Such action would be up to the church's general convention.

Sample Predicament

Diplomacy's job in a neutral state is to guess what's going to be the shape of things day after tomorrow. Belligerents, on the other hand, are interested in tomorrow.

Rumania's plight is typical. Germany must have Rumanian oil and intends to get it, by coercion if not by consent. The allies do not intend to let Germany get Rumanian oil. They threaten reprisals if the government gives in to Germany. Outcome of the war may depend on Rumania's decision.

The government's responsibility is to weigh Germany's threats against allied threats and to choose the lesser of two evils. The German army is at hand; allies forces are relatively remote. German trade, likewise, is more tangible than allied trade, being 40 per cent of the Rumanian total.

So much for tomorrow. Day after tomorrow is something else again. Rumania must consider the possibility of Germany's defeat and the effect of backing a losing horse. Outcome of the war is less important to Rumania than the outcome of Rumania. Along with Finnish relief someone should start a campaign to send sedatives to the diplomats of Rumania.

New York City's Legal Headache

THE U. S. supreme court's ruling that New York City can levy a sales tax legally on certain types of business because the tax is legal under state law and does not violate constitutional law has no bearing on the practice of collecting the tax. It is and will continue to be a headache for consumers in New York City, for business men in the city and for manufacturers and business men outside the city.

Cigarets have been a glaring example. Consumers who go to New Jersey to buy cigarets and return to New York City with unopened packages are small time smugglers. It is a plain case of government imposing a tax that consumers will not bear voluntarily. It is a violation of the rule that a good tax is one that strips the goose of its feathers without unduly exciting the case. It is contrary to the American principle that trade barriers should not be erected at geographic boundaries.

For the future book it is predicted that sooner or later New York City's sales tax will be abandoned, not on a constitutional quibble but because the game isn't worth the candle.

Any Time Now

NOT since 1815, year of Napoleon's defeat at Waterloo, has Britain had such a cold wave....

Finland, which expects bad weather, has experienced nothing like this winter in a third of a century....

In the United States January has made a mark that won't be surpassed in general orneriness for perhaps generations to come. Even the sunny south has been frozen stiff.

Any day now someone will come forth with the theory that the cause of it all is firing those big guns in Europe. It accounted for everything that went wrong with the weather the last time.

What News Isn't

AN illustration of affirmative news is, as everybody knows, a man biting a dog. If a dog bites a man, that's to be expected.

The corresponding example of negative news, thanks to the ingenuity of men, is the 15-ton snow cruiser taken to the antarctic on the government's expedition. When the snow cruiser doesn't make trouble, that's news. When it does, that's normal.

Frankly, no one's surprised that the juggernaut demolished a ramp while being taken off the ship at the Bay of Whales, an appropriate point of debarkation if there ever was one. If memory serves, it demolished a ramp when it embarked, to say nothing of bridges in Ohio and everything that stood in its path elsewhere on its way from Chicago to the east coast. Everybody's glad to hear things are going about as they were expected to go with the expedition, and that no news has developed yet.

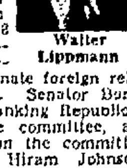
Vandenberg Resolution Quoted To Emphasize Seriousness of U. S.-Japanese Situation.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

OUR relations with Japan are now in a very much more serious condition than the majority of congress or of the people at large seem as yet to have realized. No one can afford to use big words about it.

But the fact is that the issue which has caused the termination of our treaty relations with Japan is more serious, because it is more difficult to settle peaceably than any issue which has arisen in our foreign relations for 25 years.



Walter Lippmann

The situation in which we now find ourselves was precipitated by a resolution introduced by Senator Vandenberg on July 18 last. This resolution was referred to the senate foreign relations committee. Senator Borah was then the ranking Republican member of the committee, and among others on the committee were Senators Hiram Johnson, Capper, LaFollette and Shipstead. Senator Nye was not a member. But it is highly relevant to note that Mr. Vandenberg is his candidate for president. It is, there*fore, clear beyond dispute that the* Vandenberg resolution cannot be ascribed to British propaganda or to an intrigue by the President "to involve us in other people's wars" in order to obtain a third term. The Vandenberg resolution was offered by a leading member of the foreign relations committee, it was referred to that committee in the very week when Senator Vandenberg and his associates on that committee voted to table repeal of the arms embargo and revision of the neutrality laws.

Step Toward War?

A canvass of the committee showed that it favored the sense of the Vandenberg resolution, and so, acting on the initiative of the Republican isolationists, the state department served notice on Japan that at the end of six months the Treaty of 1911 would end. Though on virtually every other matter in domestic or foreign policy there was at the time fierce opposition to the President, on this matter there was no objection, indeed there was universal non-partisan support. Yet the Vandenberg resolution was the longest step on the road to war that the United States has taken since President Wilson announced in 1915 that he would hold the German government to strict accountability for its acts.

The terms of the Vandenberg resolution and the circumstances in which it was offered must, therefore, be studied, now that the country is face to face with the actual consequences of the resolution. It declares that "the United States should give Japan the six months' notice required by the Treaty of 1911 for its abrogation." Why? "So that the government of the United States may be free to deal with Japan in the formulation of a new treaty and in the protection of American interests as new necessities may require." Everywhere in the world this was taken to mean that the United States was making itself legally free to impose an embargo against Japan and, though there seems to be some doubt whether Mr. Vandenberg himself had this in mind, no important voice was raised at the time to deny this interpretation of the resolution. It did not mean that the United States would impose an embargo, it did mean that the United States could impose an embargo.

Conference Proposed

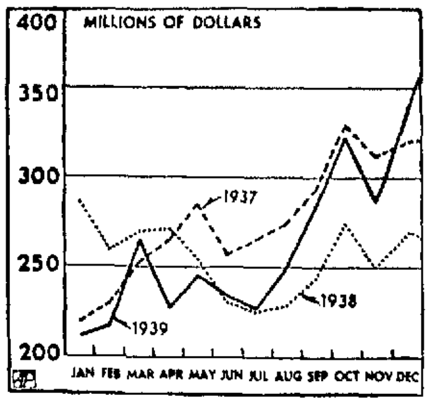
But that is not the whole of the Vandenberg resolution. It contains a second paragraph which, considering Mr. Vandenberg's isolationist theories, is really most curious. The senator asked that "the Conference of Brussels of 1937, now in recess, should be reassembled." The Conference of Brussels was attended by the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, China, the Netherlands, Belgium and Portugal. These powers, says the Vandenberg resolution, should meet to "determine, pursuant to the nine-power treaty of Washington of 1922, whether Japan has been and is violating said treaty and to recommend the appropriate course to be pursued by the signatories.

This was a remarkable proposal. It was made, let us remember, at a time when Japan was still bound up with Germany in the so-called anti-Comintern pact. The United States was to join with six European powers, not including Germany and Russia, and with one greatly interested Asiatic power, namely China, in passing judgment upon Japan. This international group was then to recommend "the appropriate course to be pursued" if Japan was found guilty. It is plain that by the words "appropriate course" Senator Vandenberg cannot have meant that the conference should condone Japan's violation of the nine-power treaty; his firm language can mean only that the conference was to uphold the treaty, and by something more than the use of words.

Yet at the time when Senator Vandenberg introduced the resolution, which brought about the termination of our treaty relations with Japan, the European members of his proposed conference were known to be on the brink of a European war. That fact must have been known to Senator Vandenberg. Yet he proposed to invite Great Britain and France (but not Germany), to join with the United States in judging Japan and in recommending a course of action. But also, at the very moment when Senator Vandenberg was calling upon these European powers to help us deal with the Far Eastern problem, he was devoting his great eloquence and mighty influence to deny them the right to purchase arms by preventing the repeal of the arms embargo.

Britain's Triple Play

Explaining John Bull's Anti-U. S. Moves.



This graph shows the U. S. export situation. Notice that our trade with other nations was better in 1937 than it was in wartime 1939 — despite a December, 1939, spurt. Explanation: France and England are confining their purchases, outside of armaments, to the nations that usually supply Germany. That keeps raw materials away from Germany.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—When you read that British embargoes are shutting off one-third of our tobacco export market and are hitting our cotton, wheat, and fruit growers, you're just getting new examples of the fact that war is hell even on people who aren't in it.

The moves that hit American farmers where it hurts are part of an economic triple play devised by British economists to win the war within a year. If American economists are right in their deductions, the play works like this:

1. Naval blockade against Germany.

2. Purchase of strategic materials in the world markets to keep them from slipping through the blockade to Germany, supplemented by the usual rationing of the ring of neutrals surrounding Germany.

3. Trade favors for the ring of neutrals to keep down violent protests against the strangulation of trade, and to win them over, eventually, as Franco-British allies.

American unofficial observers believe British economists have sold the British government the economic triple play on the ground that (1) the generals can offer no practical plan now to break the stalemate on the Western front, and (2) the World war was won through economic strangulation of Germany after four years of trial and error.

Again if the American observers are right, the British and French governments have decided to apply the new economic triple play drastically, and they must expect it to produce victory within a year, because it costs like all get out.

Smoke Gets In Our Eyes

At any rate, there must be fire where there's so much smoke. Here are a few samples of the smoke:

The American government is charging discrimination in the Mediterranean against American vessels, and favoring Italian vessels. The Italians are potential British allies.

The United States is protesting the opening of American mail by British censors. That brings to mind Secretary Lansing's impression in the World war that British censors were opening American mail with the idea of passing on to British and allied traders information about potential markets for their products. American shiploads of goods meanwhile were held for examination in British ports.

And perhaps the best illustration of the new British policy is the purchase of the Australian and New Zealand wool crops, and the price guarantee to South African wool growers.

By those strokes the British government not only guaranteed that strategic wool would not reach Germany, but also avoided widespread discontent among the wool growers in far-flung units of the empire.

There's economic drama behind the South African price guarantee, too. On last August 31 the German government contracted with South African wool growers for 30,000,000 pounds of South African wool. Three days later war was declared. The South Africans debated whether to declare war. The British government guaranteed a wool price about two cents

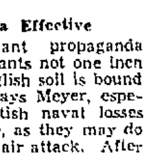
A Former Nazi Speaks

Germany Won't Collapse Easily, Ex-Official Says.

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—A former counsellor of the German embassy in Washington, now seemingly in poor standing with the Nazi regime, can give you a few fresh slants on the European war.

In a three-column letter to the New York Times, the former counsellor, Ernest Wilhelm Meyer, cautions against thinking that Germany will collapse easily, and suggests that the Allies may have to revise their propaganda if they expect to undermine Hitler.



Preston Grover

"Only major land battles result in a very large consumption of copper, cotton, rubber, etc., and if, under the protection of his Westwall, Hitler refrains from major land battles, his need for raw materials will be greatly limited."

Of the oft-expressed view that Goering is a conservative with whom the allies could negotiate a peace if Hitler were removed, Meyer says:

"To regard Goering as a conservative is tantamount to calling Gandhi a warmonger or Trotsky a capitalist."

Of the Russian alliance, he says:

"The final attitude of Russia is undetermined; the chances of ever closer cooperation with Hitler's bolshevized Germany are many times greater than the opposite chances."

Propaganda Effective

Hitler's constant propaganda that Germany wants not one inch of French or English soil is bound to have effect, says Meyer, especially when British naval losses begin to increase, as they may do with a sustained air attack. After all, he says, no one knows yet just how hard the fleet may suffer from the German air attack.

However, Meyer voices a view held widely here that a victory for Hitler "would be both a defeat for Germany and a defeat for Europe.

"It would be a defeat for Germany, for no transitory increase of military and political power could out-balance the definite destruction of all the better qualities of the German nation as a result of the National Socialist destruction of law and justice; of political freedom, replaced by political insincerity and hypocrisy; of freedom of science, education, art and press; of free labor and free enterprise, of free worship, and of all Christian, ethical principles."

Germans Not Hated

So far Meyer has found no bitterness against the German masses, either here or abroad, but wonders whether the bombing of the big cities, so often predicted, would not generate a spirit for another punishing Versailles. That, he said, would bestir in Germany a desperate fear of an Allied victory.

"No help can come from telling the German masses that the war is conducted not against Germany but only against Hitler. Although this might be entirely true, nevertheless they are tragically reminded of 1914-1918, when they were told that the war was conducted only against the Kaiser. Yet after the Kaiser, they got Versailles and Germany was dismembered."

It is true, he said, that opposition to Hitler is developing within Germany into a solid front, but the masses, including the conscript army, will not turn against him without a solid conviction that his presence is Germany's worst liability.

"Nothing would better clarify the situation and promote peace by defeating Hitler," he said, "than the proclamation of about the following principles: (a) No change of frontiers except on the basis of self-determination for all, for Poles and Czechs, for Germans and Austro-Germans; (b) establishment of international law, enforceable for the first time in human history because of establishment of an international police force, larger than all private armies. (c) consolidation of some major colonies into an international pool. (d) establishment of a European union—of the United States of Europe."

How To Recall Mail

By The Associated Press

LARAMIE, Wyo.—Many people believe that once a letter enters the United States mail postal regulations forbid the recovery of it by the sender before it reaches the addressee.

That isn't so, says Postmaster A. E. Holliday of Laramie. Postoffices have instructions to go so far as to telegraph distant cities, if necessary, to extract a letter from the mail if the sender suddenly changes his mind and decides he wans to take back what he said.

It is only necessary to identify yourself as the sender of the letter, by describing it minutely and providing a sample of your handwriting.

MOSCOW—Baseball, which at one time seemed unable to make any headway in Soviet Russia, has taken on a new lease on life and now will be played on a large scale.

Under a recent decision of the All-Union physical culture and sports committee, supreme sports authority, baseball equipment will be produced in mass in Soviet factories. The first seminar for coaches in the sport will be held in Moscow this winter.

This decision is regarded as a victory for Moscow school-boys who clung to the game when it was first introduced while it died out elsewhere.

I ses all right so what? Ethel ses well I would not want to wear all that jewelry. I ses Ethel I guess you do not need to worry. I ses the way things are going with me you will be lucky if you get to wear a couple of dollars worth of jewelry. Ethel ses O pooh Joe my wrist watch is worth more than that. But I would feel funny if I had to wear half a million dollars worth of things.

I ses why would you feel funny sweet? Ethel ses suppose I was wearing that much jewelry and met Mittie Watson. I ses do you mean Bill Watson's wife? Ethel ses yes that is the one. She has two children and Bill has not had a job for months. They are really having a hard time. Suppose I met her Joe?

I ses all right Ethel I will suppose you met her and so what? Ethel ses why don't you think I would feel funny with my half a million dollars worth of jewelry when Mittie was having such a hard time? I would really feel embarrassed Joe because sometimes I wonder if they have enough to eat. Can you imagine me in my twenty five thousand dollar sable coat meeting Hannah Pasker?

I SES now wait a minute Ethel. I ses you were talking about meeting Mittie Watson when you were wearing a half million dollars worth of jewelry and now you are meeting Hannah Pasker in a twenty five thousand dollar sable coat.

I ses where does the sable coat come in anyway? Ethel ses O Joe if I was wearing half a million dollars worth of jewelry I would be sure to have on my sable coat when I met Hannah.

I ses do you mean Pete Paskers wife? Ethel ses yes. Pete has not been able to buy her a new coat for years now and the one she is wearing looks terrible. How do you think I would feel if I met Hannah in her old coat and me in my twenty five thousand dollar sable? Why Joe I would feel something awful. I would be so embarrassed I would die.

I ses Ethel what is the idea of worrying about things like that? I ses you not only have no chance of wearing all that jewelry you are talking about but you have even less chance of wearing a twenty five thousand dollar sable coat. I ses Ethel don't let anybody kid you. I ses that is no such thing as a coat that costs twenty five thousand dollars.

Ethel ses that shows how much you know Joe. There was a picture in the paper yesterday of a lady wearing one. It was a beautiful looking coat too. I ses I should think it would be for all that dough and Ethel ses well that is the one I would be wearing with my half a million dollars worth of jewelry when I met Mittie Watson and Hannah in her ruggedy old coat.

I SES would you meet them one at a time or both together? Ethel ses what difference would it make how I met them? I would be stepping out of my expensive limousine with the chauffeur in uniform and that would make me feel more embarrassed than ever because Mittie and Hannah would be walking and Mittie would probably have the children with her. The boy is very sickly Joe.

Then Ethel started to cry and I ses why baby what on earth is the matter? I ses are you sick or what? She ses no Joe I am not sick. It just makes me feel sad when I think about meeting Mittie and Hannah in my half a million dollars worth of jewelry and my twenty five thousand dollar sable coat and stepping out of my expensive limousine. Joe I think the reason the little boy is sickly is because he does not get enough to eat.

I ses Ethel what is the sense of feeling sad about meeting those dames in your half a million dollars of jewelry and your sable coat when you have not got any such things and have no chance of getting them or of stepping out of anything but our old jallopy either? I ses if you will stop crying awhile you can go over to Watsons and tell Bill I can get him a kind of a job tomorrow and you can take them something to eat too.

ETHEL ses O I did that today Joe. I ses did what? She ses took them something to eat but what about Hannah and Pete? I ses well sweets I guess I can get Pete a kind of a job too but it will not be much of a one. I ses it will be a living but that's about all. I ses I don't know if he can buy Hannah a new coat out of it, and Ethel ses O that's not necessary. She has already got one that's fine for the rest of the winter.

I ses why you just got through telling me about her old one and Ethel ses yes but I did not tell you I gave her the one I wore last winter. I never liked it anyway Joe and its almost as good as new. I ses well sweets some day I will get you one of those twenty five thousand dollar sable things and Ethel ses no Joe one that costs half as much would be better because then I would not feel embarrassed in it.

Yours truly,
JOE TURP.

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS

William Woodbridge, who held elective offices in Ohio as assemblyman, county prosecutor and state senator, continued to enjoy popularity when he moved to Michigan as attested by his election to the governorship on a platform of "Woodbridge and reform," in 1839.

The son of Dudley Woodbridge, a famous Revolutionary minuteman who moved to Marietta in 1789, William and a brother remained in Massachusetts to attend college. After three years he joined his parents and attended a law college there. Admitted to the bar in 1806, he launched upon a long officeholding career.

President Madison in 1814 appointed him secretary of the Michigan territory, where he continued his political pursuits. Woodbridge was the recognized leader of the Whig party in Michigan by 1839, when he was elected governor.

Book Burners

In recent weeks German authorities have staged another kind of Burning of the Books, but the wholesale destruction of works this time has had no accompaniment of orgiastic dancing and singing in the streets of Berlin and elsewhere, or delirious outcries of Aryan superiority. The fact is these bonfires have been given the torch on the quiet, and there has been apparent a good deal of bureaucratic embarrassment about it. In this case the books made to disappear comprise the anti-Communist literature, a considerable task, since its quantity is appalling. But it had to be done. Hitler's sudden and tender regard for the sensibilities of Josef Stalin demanded the withdrawal from circulation of such mistaken tracts as "Jews Behind Stalin," by Komos; "How the Russian Worker Lives," by Keyserling; "Moscow Exposed," by Butenko, and "Reckoning with Moscow," by Reese. Now Berlin has "reckoned" with Moscow, and all good Nazis must surely see that any such volumes as those cited are not scriptural—even if they have been in popular circulation for six years—but merely indiscreet exuberances of the Nazi young. FINNS RETAKE CAPTURED CITY

Pitkaranta, Lost Early in War, Regained in Drive North of Lake Ladoga.

By The Associated Press

HELSINKI, Jan. 31—The Finns, in a sharp thrust north of Lake Ladoga, have recaptured the important city of Pitkaranta, 10 miles southeast of Kitela, and about 20 miles from the Soviet Russian frontier, it was reported unofficially today.

Pitkaranta was occupied by the Red army early in the invasion of Finland.

Its recapture was described as an effective gain in the encircling move against Russian divisions trapped in the Kitela sector.

An observer from the Lake Ladoga front reported two of the Soviet divisions there had been without food more than a week, although they still had ammunition.

Use Waiting Strategy

According to this source, the Finnish strategy now is one of waiting until the Russians run out of bullets, at the same time keeping up punishing thrusts against the Russian positions.

He said the Soviet offensive northeast of the lake had been technically broken for some time, but that the Finns, because of numerically inferior forces, must bide their time before taking full advantage of the victory.

The same informant said evidence had been found by the Finns that Russian dead were being disposed of through holes in the ice so as to conceal the extent of casualties.

Meanwhile, fresh troops from Russia were reported pouring into the Salla front, above the Arctic circle, in an effort to turn the tide against the Finns in the far north.

Hard Test Coming

With the Red army's positions virtually unchanged after 10 days of fighting, the Finnish Arctic army faced what military sources believed was its hardest test on a forested ridge above Markajarvi. The Finns said they believed the reinforcements, possibly totalling a full division, indicated the Russians still expected to cut Finland in two this winter.

While enemy air raids eased yesterday after Monday's devastating attack, a new display of Finland's own aerial power was seen in official reports that a Russian harbor had been bombed and enemy ships struck.

Informed quarters believed the harbor was Kronstadt, in the Gulf of Finland near Leningrad.

2 MEN KILLED ON RAIL WRECK TRAIN

Crushed as Cars Telescope in Mishap.

By The Associated Press

URBANA, O., Jan. 31—Two men were killed early today when two cars telescoped on a Pennsylvania wreck train near Woodstock, 11 miles east. Another man was injured.

N. F. Layman, wreck master, and H. L. McMorrow, a laborer, were killed while sleeping in a bunk car. Samuel W. Whitt was hurt seriously and taken to White Cross hospital in Columbus, where the three lived.

Six other men in the bunk car were shaken up when it telescoped a tool-laden car after a broken draw bar split the train, stopping the front section suddenly.

Traffic on the line was tied up about five hours.

Coroner Richard Brand planned an inquest.

The wreck train was enroute from Urbana to Columbus. The crew had been here to pick up some parts and three damaged coal cars.

CLEVELAND SLAYER SENTENCED TO CHAIR

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Jan. 31—Angelo Porrello escaped in the prohibition era feud which killed four brothers but today he too was marked for death.

A three-judge court convicted the 53-year-old Clevelander yesterday of first-degree murder in the slaying of a former associate, Joseph Smeraldi. There was no recommendation of mercy, making death in the electric chair mandatory. Porrillo said he would appeal.

Smeraldi was shot down Nov. 11 in what the defendant described as an attempted holdup. He testified the slain man had threatened him with a pair of scissors but the state charged Porrello was the aggressor.

FARM INEQUALITY SEEN AS DANGER

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 31—R. W. Blackburn of Chicago, secretary of the American Farm Bureau federation, believes democracy is doomed unless the present economic inequality between agriculture and industry is adjusted.

In a farmers' week address at Ohio State university, Blackburn urged that agricultural and industrial groups cooperate with the federal government in seeking a "fair balance" of industrial prices and wages with commodity prices.

He accused industry and labor of following the "monopoly approach" in efforts to restore prosperity and trying to maintain prices and wages [illegible]

Levies for Relief and WPA Beaten

street school, which reported at 7:15, only 45 minutes after the polls closed. After that there was a fairly steady flow and the last precinct was in at 8:20. The final precinct reporting was 2-E, Silver street school.

The first ward to be completed was the Sixth at about 7:50.

From the first returns, it appeared the WPA levy was doomed to defeat and that the relief levy had a tough battle on its hands.

At the end of the first five precincts the relief vote stood at 358 yes and 333 no, about 51 per cent favorable. The WPA vote was 349 yes and 318 no, about 52 per cent favorable.

At 10 precincts the relief vote was 608 yes and 691 no and the WPA vote was 583 yes and 676 no, both under 50 per cent.

At Half-Way Mark

At the half-way mark of 16 precincts, both levies were still under 50 per cent, the relief issue having 912 yes to 1,044 no and the WPA having 870 yes and 1,039 no.

The WPA levy never climbed back above the 50 per cent mark after the first five precincts were in.

The relief levy however began to pick up a little after 20 precincts. At the 25-precinct mark it had almost a 50 per cent vote with 1,685 yes and 1,701 no. It carried in two of the last five precincts to come in, but this was not enough to push it over the 55 per cent level.

Considerable interest was evident in the outcome of the levies. Calls began to come in at The Star office before 7 o'clock and at the election board there were also numerous calls. Inquiries at The Star continued until late in the evening and this morning were still numerous.

Many callers expressed surprise that the levies were defeated. One woman, however, declared that the result was "what I wanted."

Mayor's Comments

Mayor Snare, in commenting upon the defeat of the levies today, interpreted the decisive loss of the WPA levy as an indication the city does not want WPA. He pointed out that it lost by a much greater margin than the relief levy.

He said that as the situation looks now the city will abandon WPA work after the present projects expire. This will mean that the people now on city WPA projects will have to go to projects sponsored by some other public subdivision or will have to go on city relief.

The $136,000 sewer improvement project, which was planned by the city if the WPA levy passed, is definitely out of the picture as far as the mayor can determine at present. Other projects now running, such as the sewing center, household aid, some street work and the traffic survey, will be discontinued after their present fund allocations expire, according to the mayor's present viewpoint.

As for relief, the mayor expects some program of financing to be worked out very shortly.

Too Much for General Fund

"At this moment I don't think we can finance relief out of the general operating funds of the city," he said. "As it is, it will be necessary for us to cut down our normal operating expenses as far as possible in order to come within our certification."

The mayor said the county budget commission has certified about $195,000 for general operation in 1940 and that this is about $9,000 less than the city used last year.

He said the city's operating revenue was never intended to be used for such emergencies as relief. He also declared that he feels the city is entitled to full police and fire protection, despite the defeat of the levies. One of the suggested alternatives to the use of levy money for relief had been curtailing of such services.

In general, the mayor described the city's attitude right now as "uncertain." What actually will happen will depend, of course, on decisions reached within the next few days.

Issuing of notes against delinquent tax collections.

Transfer of certain parts of gasoline and auto license money (must be paid back later).

Use of general operating funds in part.

Levying of some sort of personal tax.

However, these are all possibilities only and no action has been taken on any.

One Grant Still Due

Although the city's relief funds were exhausted today, there is still at least one month's grant due from the state. After that comes in, all future funds will hinge on what funds the city can raise to match state grants.

The special election cost [illegible] which is charged entirely to the city.

CLEVELAND SETS UP NEW RELIEF FUND

Six Million Dollar Budget Represents $600,000 Cut.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Jan. 31—Fred W. Ramsey, city welfare director, to*day set up a $6,000,000 relief* budget for 1940, a slash of $600,000 from last year's expenditures.

In recommending the outlay, Mayor Harold H. Burton explained the figure was half a million less than estimated needs. He said the city was following Gov. Bricker's suggestion that improved business conditions should make it possible to cut proposed costs.

The mayor said the program would not involve reductions in relief standards, but would mean a tightening of control over expenditures and allocation of definite monthly amounts. Virtually all the 1939 funds were spent in the first 10 months of the year, precipitating a severe crisis in November and early December.

Mayor Burton added little of the $6,000,000 was in sight. If the state provides its share on the same basis as last year (43 per cent), the city will get $2,580,000. Adding to the fund problem is a $557,000 deficit carried over to this year.

resulting savings in investment, upkeep and insurance, he pointed out.

Speaking on teachers' requirements, Mr. Bowers pointed out that after 1942 all elementary school teachers, except those holding life certificates, will be required to have college degrees and he recommended that the rural school boards work out a single salary schedule for all teachers.

"The trend is toward uniform requirements for all teachers, whether they teach in elementary grades or in high school, and it seems unfair that elementary teachers should be placed on a lower salary schedule than high school teachers," he said.

D. T. Mills, superintendent of the Marion county rural schools, presided at the meeting.

The will was written by hand on paper from a senate tablet. It let "everything I have to my beloved Mary."

Air Raid Renewal Seen as Prelude to General Attack

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

There is considerable speculation as to whether special meaning is to be attached to the wide-spread Nazi air raids on allied shipping during the last two days, but there are at least a couple of good, non-conflicting answers—and one of them means there's blood on Europe's moon.

First off, the bombings presumably were intended in part as a fitting martial accompaniment for Herr Hitler's reappearance last night on the speaker's rostrum on the seventh anniversary of the fuehrer's ascent to the chancellorship. It also was the fitting hour for him to reply to the oratorical blasts of French Premier Daladier, British First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill, and other allied ministers who have entered the lists in the battle of words.

Logical Reason for Raids

With the thumping of chests and the battle-cries of the trio stilled for the moment, another wholly logical reason for the Nazi raids appears. Premier Daladier may have called the turn Monday night when he warned France in a speech that total war with Germany "cannot be long in breaking." He added that it would be "criminal" to underestimate Germany's formidable war strength.

Those raids to my mind represented a "business double." England herself has been wondering whether a lightning war against shipping is at hand.

Obviously the raids weren't major affairs, though the Germans certainly were out to sink as many ships as possible with the score or so of planes used. There are dispute and confusion as to results. It apparently is agreed, however, that the assaults were nasty affairs in which ships were sunk and lives were lost.

Whatever way one looks at it these raids—the most ambitious and perhaps destructive yet aimed at shipping—would seem to give further indication that the Germans are getting tuned up for a wholesale air offensive against England as soon as the good weather comes.

BEN WEST

It was believed West's petitions would be insufficient to qualify him as a candidate if the 63 signatures were invalidated.

The affidavits were sent to the Richland county election board in Mansfield which has the authority to decide the issue.

Charles West, former undersecretary of the interior, was congressman from the seventeenth district from 1931 to 1936. He had been mentioned in early speculation as a possible candidate for the post left vacant by the death of the late Rep. William A. Ashbrook, Democrat.

Other candidates for the Democratic nomination are Frank Cave of Mansfield, Dr. Ben Arneson of Delaware, George J. McDonald of Newark, William Haas of Delaware, B. B. Ferenbaugh of Mt. Vernon and Byron B. Ashbrook of Johnstown.

In Cleveland, Democratic National Committeeman Charles Sawyer declared President Roosevelt was "the best friend American labor ever had."

Witness Before Committee Admits He Forged Letter.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—A Dies committee witness has testified, the committee announced after a secret session, that he forged letters purporting to link Chairman Dies, Democrat of Texas, with William Dudley Pelley, Silver Shirts leader.

Excerpts from the letters were placed in the congressional record of Jan. 22 by Representative Hook, Democrat of Michigan, who said they were signed "Pelley." The latter's organization has been termed a "Fascist" group by the Dies committee.

The witness, a Washington man, was said in a committee statement last night, to have given the following testimony:

He was approached by one Harold Weisberg, who said that a "certain group" headed by Weisberg and Gardner Jackson of Labor's Non-Partisan league was seeking information to show collusion between Dies and "Fascist groups."

In return for such information, he said, Weisburg "offered to pay him $100 as a retainer and in addition to obtain for him a position in the department of agriculture through the influence of Gardner Jackson and his contacts in the government."

The witness then said he manufactured the bogus letters, turned them over to Weisberg and received $100.

SELECTS GAIN GROUND TODAY

Traders, However, Refrain from Engaging in Much Business.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—Selected shares advanced modest fractions in the stock market today, but traders refrained from engaging in much business.

Steels, mail order, coppers and a variety of miscellaneous issues were up a shade going into the fourth hour, but observers were calling the improvement "mainly technical."

Although corporation earnings reports continued good, market sentiment was dampened by the slackening flow of new orders in steel and other "basic" lines.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Youngstown displayed rising tendencies as the day progressed. Other gainers of fractions included Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Douglas, Sperry, U. S. Gypsum, Allied Chemical, Loft, Kennecott and Phelps Dodge.

Commodities advanced somewhat, but foreign markets slipped. Bonds were fairly firm. The curb was uneven.

Of cheering flavor was the Chicago report that Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward, world's broken all records with sales of broken all recods with sales of $1,100,000,000 worth of merchandise in 1939.

Three railroads headquartered in St. Louis—the Frisco, Wabash and Missouri Pacific — reported net operating gains last year over 1938 of 237 per cent, 174 per cent and 31 per cent, respectively.

Boston Wool

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Jan 31—Little domestic wool was moving in the Boston market today. Quotations were somewhat irregular, tending lower. Country-packed offerings of mixed three-eighths and quarter-blood bright fleece wools were quoted at 41 to 42 cents, in the grease, delivered to users, and very little demand was being received. Some graded combing quarter blood territory wool was being offered at prices slightly under .73 cents, scoured basis, although a few houses were not willing to accept prices that low.

GEORGE H. DAVIES,
Attorney for Plaintiff.

WHEAT PRICE VARIES AT CHICAGO TODAY

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Jan. 31 — Wheat prices moved irregularly within a narrow range today and after gaining ⅝ cent fell as much as ⅞ cent a bushel under the previous close.

Lack of follow through buying on a brief, moderate upturn that carried May contracts to 97⅝, and failure of Winnipeg to maintain early advances caused the decline for the day's best levels. May contracts fell to 96¼, down ⅞ from the previous close.

Wheat finished ⅜-¾ under yesterday's close, May 96½-⅝, July 93⅞-¾; corn ¼-⅝ down, May 55⅞-¾; July 55¾; oats ¼-½ higher.

FARM LEADER ASKS FULL PARITY PRICES

Demands That Congress Quit Tampering with Funds.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Jan. 31—President Earl C. Smith of the Illinois Agriculture association in a speech prepared for delivery today demanded that congress and the administration "cease temporizing with the farm problem" and act to put farm prices up to full parity.

Addressing the association's twenty-fifth annual convention, Smith said that to make fully effective the primary purpose of the agricultural administration act, it was "absolutely necessary" that "adequate" appropriations be made available this year to provide for parity adjustment payments "sufficient to bridge completely the gap between farm market prices and parity."

(In Washington, the house appropriations committee yesterday urged a 50 per cent reduction in next year's agriculture department supply bill compared to the current year's total.)

Smith, who is vice president and member of the executive committee of the American Farm Bureau federation, said that a "full effective permanent solution of the farm problem is a first essential to the solution of the unemployment problem and the balancing of the national budget."

But, he charged, both Democrats and Republicans in congress have been "temporizing with the farm problem." Everything yet done by congress, he added, was "to appease the farmer rather than directed fully to the solution of the agricultural problem."

The farm leader reiterated demands of the federation's executive committee that congress appropriate $607,000,000 for full parity payments.

Exiled by Court, Agosta Man Fails to Obey, Is Jailed

A few hours after Tom Miller, 65, of Agosta was ordered to remain out of Marion in return for a suspended fine on an intoxication and panhandling charge, he was rearrested by police for failure to obey the court order and was committed to the county jail.

Miller was first arrested by police in the uptown district Monday night and at an arraignment before Municipal Judge Haren yesterday morning was fined $25 and costs. The court however, suspended the fine and costs on the condition that Miller leave Marion immediately and remain out of the city for three years.

Yesterday afternoon Miller was taken into custody at a South Main street restaurant and was committed to the county jail after court officials ruled that provisions of the suspended sentence had been violated and after Miller told police he was unable to pay the fine.

Police said their records show that Miller has been arrested 14 times since December, 1936 on intoxication and similar charges.

DEMAND FOR STEEL SHOWS LITTLE GAIN

"Iron Age" Reports on Industry After Survey.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—"Convincing" evidence of a broader demand for steel in the immediate future, except from the automobile companies, is nowhere to be found, "Iron Age" said today in a weekly survey.

"While January is normally a period of slow pick-up," the magazine said, "the situation has been affected this year by the heavy production of the fourth quarter and widespread cold weather and snow, which have delayed the placing of orders from spring activity."

The probability the automobile industry will come into the market during February for March requirements was mentioned as a source of new buying.

"Considering these retarding factors, some steel companies derive a degree of satisfaction from a steady flow of orders, even though the aggregate volume is not increasing and averages not more than 50 per cent of shipments," the review continued.

"A further reduction of backlog tonnage accounts for a five-point drop in the ingot producion rate for the industry to 77 per cent this week.

"A more sharply competitive situation in fabricated structural steel and reinforcing bars, brought about by the mid-winter dearth of new construction projects, is accompanied by price concessions in some districts, the situation on the Pacific coast being particularly weak."

Declining prices for scrap steel reflected the cloudy outlook, the survey added. The "Iron Age" scrap composite price declined to $17.33 a ton.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, Feb. 1

AN ACTIVE and interesting day, with personal engagements dominating the activities, is read from the predominant planetary configurations. The accent seems to be on social, domestic and affectional affairs or those business interests involved in catering to such happy functions. All artistic pursuits are under good auspices, and the mystical or psychological expressions of creative talents and splendid stimulus under this rule. However, in connection with all such idealistic experiences, there may be sudden and surprising disruptions.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of extremely lively experiences in social, domestic, artistic or emotional activities. A mystical or intuitional element may be involved. There may be a unique original or modernistic expression in poetry, music or art. Romance may be absorbing and cause sudden or entangling upheavals or changes.

A child born on this day may be splendidly endowed with all the social, emotional, artistic and romantic graces and talents, and have a gentle, genial and sympathetic nature. It may also have strong intuitions or some form of mystical or subtle creative depths, perhaps in poetry or music.

Light from three small mercury lamps cooled by water is used instead of the usual carbon arc in a new 25,000,000-candlepower searchlight that functions without attention.
